SEARCH FOR LOST JEWEL

BY LISE VERVACKE

THIS IS A CALLOUT TO ANYONE WHO MIGHT HAVE FOUND OR SEEN THE LOST JEWEL FROM THE HAPPINESS COLLECTION. THE JEWEL IS A NECKLACE IN THE SHAPE OF THE SUN. POLICE HAVE ANNOUNCED A SEARCH AND DON'T THINK IT IS STOLEN.

The necklace from the happiness collection was being transferred from the factory to one of the stores when employees found out it wasn't in its rightful place. They immediately organized a search from the factory to where they last have seen it, but with no luck. Because it is an expensive jewel, the police were called in.

After the investigation, the police presumed that the jewel got lost because there is no evidence of theft. They ask everyone to look out for it and contact the store or the local police station if you find something.

To prevent that people will keep the jewel for themselves, the police decided not to mention the price of the necklace. The chief in command gave our journalist a description of the lost jewel.

The necklace exists of a pendant in the shape of a sun. The sunrays are silver, just like the necklace itself. The middle of the pendant is gold and both of the parts are made out of platinum. The jewel belongs to the happiness collection. Because the jewel is expensive, there were only three copies made.

WHAT CAN YOU DO?

If you want to help look for the jewel, this is your chance!

The store owner organizes a search for the necklace on Monday, November 2nd. The search starts at the store in the centre of Equalano and ends at the factory. The owner calls to come up with as many as possible. The group will be divided and each one will get his area to search. When the jewel is found, a party is organized for the people who helped.

If you want to join the search party, contact the store owner Zarah Carrillo. Below you can find her contact information.
